

GSA Fundraising Made Easy

Your GSA club probably has a lot of wonderful ideas and projects in mind, but does not have enough money to support them. In order to be an effective leader of a strong GSA club, it is very important to understand how fundraising works. Many students elect a treasurer to be in charge of all financial responsibilities, but fundraising is work that everyone needs to know how to do! This resource sheet will help get your club on the path to raising dollars to spend on queer-fabulous events!

It is important that every GSA member understands fundraising and thinks about ways to help the club members raise money.

- If you are unaware of your school’s fundraising policy for clubs, talk to the Student Government (or Associated Student Body) Advisor. Invite them to a GSA meeting so they can explain the process for fundraising to all of the GSA members.
- The chart below, describes the steps that some GSA clubs have to follow in order to have a successful fundraiser. The fundraising policies are different at every school, so it is important to understand the fundraising policies at your own school.

How to Fundraise At Your School

Have a GSA meeting dedicated to understanding what fundraising is.

- Have the facilitator of the meeting define fundraising: fundraising is the act of raising money for an organization or club’s mission and projects.
- You can also start planning a fundraiser during that meeting by asking your club members what ideas they have.

Fundraising

Here are some successful GSA Fundraising Ideas

1. Selling rainbow pastries (rainbow cakes, rainbow-sprinkled cupcakes, rainbow-chocolate chip cookies).
2. Team up with the Drama/Theater club and sponsor a play with LGBT issues, charge admission, and then split the profits.
3. Sponsor a competition (essay writing, poem, etc) and have local businesses donate items/ money for winners
4. A lot of local businesses allow school clubs to have fundraisers. For example, Jamba Juice donates 20% of all the purchases made during a specific period of time. All it takes to get this started is filling out a simple form.
5. Murrieta Valley High School's GSA had a silent auction were businesses and individuals donated items that were auctioned off and the proceeds went to the GSA club.
6. Students can mail letters or call parents, teachers, local businesses, and community members to donate money.

Plan a fundraising event.

Once your GSA has decided on a possible fundraiser, use GSA Network's "How to Plan an Event" Resource Guide to help you with the logistics of the event. Follow the numbers with the Event/Project Planning Worksheet

1. Event: What is the name of the fundraiser/What type of fundraiser is your GSA planning?
2. Date: When does your GSA plan on having the fundraiser?
3. Goals: How much money does your GSA expect to fundraise?
4. Objectives: What is the purpose of the fundraiser?
5. Strategies: What are the steps, due dates, and who is responsible for each step? For example, if you need to reserve a specific space, who is going to do it and how much time in advance does the reservation need to take place?
6. Materials: What items are going to be needed and who can provide them?
7. Evaluation: How did your fundraiser go? Was it a success? How many people attended? How much profit did you make? Did you sign up more people to support the GSA?

If your GSA has a very successful fundraiser event, let us know at news@gsanetwork.org—we'd like to hear about it!

Hi, May I speak with _____? Do you have a minute to discuss (school name)? I am a student there and we have (a problem, an opportunity. Explain what it is in 1 sentence). This is what we want to do (explain your project in one sentence); and we need your support. [If they want to know more about the GSA, try to answer any questions they have and offer to send them GSA-related materials if you have any]

If no:

[Thank them for their time and move on to the next person. You can't win them all. You should expect as many as half of the people you ask to say no, that's normal. People have many reasons for saying no, don't assume it's personal.]

[Date]

Dear _____:

For the past ____ months, I have been involved with a student-run club at my school called the _____ Gay-Straight Alliance (GSA). Thank you,

[sign the letter]

P.S If you have other questions about the GSA please call me at _____. I hope you will support our GSA and its efforts to make our school safer for LGBT youth.

Community Grants

Community grant-making programs give money to organizations or student clubs that submit an application that explain why they need the money. Usually, the grants are given to organizations/clubs that have specific detailed projects they would like to work on, but need money in order to accomplish it.

Here is some advice from Julie Dean of the Community Foundation Silicon Valley:

- Be SPECIFIC about what you plan to do with the grant what activities your GSA will do and how you will spend the money (research your budget and make it realistic)
- Be clear WHY you want to do the project described in your grant. For example, how will the project benefit your group? Benefit your school? Benefit others in the community? What is the effect your project will have? It is important to describe the activities you will do, but also explain why your group wants to do the project and why it is important.
- Be YOURSELF. Don't try to so hard to make your application sound "professional" that it doesn't sound like anything you would ever say. The people reviewing your application will usually be more impressed if you keep it real than by big words.
- Be THOROUGH. Always double-check that you included all the information requested, whether it is filling in a form, writing on a separate sheet, or attaching a list, budget, or other info. When you are providing a phone number/address for a contact person, it is usually helpful to indicate if it is a youth or an adult, and to provide contact info for one of each.
